DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
 - (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wistendahl, (U.S. Pat # 5,708,845), in view of Peairs, (U.S. Pat # 6,182,090).

Considering claim 1, the claimed system for providing an interactive look-and-feel in a playing device receiving digital information, comprising:

'a signal generator which generates a digital signal comprising interleaved bits of at least one audio, video and binary data for play on a playing device, and private data', is met by the workstation, disclosed in Wistendahl, which is used by an author to edit audiovisual information and add hyperlinks to the instant audiovisual information, see col. 4, lines 60-67; col. 9, lines 24-60.

The claimed 'private data that includes an event identification for the at least one audio, video or binary data for linking to additional at least one audio, video or binary data, such that each hot-spot is linked to at least one of the additional audio, video or binary data, wherein the link data includes a set of coordinates defining a location on the playing device', is met by the teachings of Wistendahl, which teaches that the system uses N Data that designates the area of hot-spots on a TV screen, col. 5, lines 55-67. Thus, the claimed 'private data' reads on N Data.

As for the additionally claimed feature of the 'private data' including 'an indication of the number of hot-spots', Wistendahl does not discuss such a feature. Nevertheless Peairs, which is in the same filed of endeavor, teaches that when multiple interactive icons are placed on a page or document that it is advantageous to keep track of the total icons, at least by providing each icon with a sequential number, Abstract; col. 4, lines 35-65. It would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to modify Wistendahl with the feature of numbering the interactive icons, which reads on the claimed 'hot-spots', for the desirable improvement of indexing the content on the page, as taught by Peairs.

Regarding the claimed feature of the 'synchronization time indicating the temporal position of the additional information with at least one of audio, video or binary data', Wistendahl teaches that using a conventional time sequence (col. 5, lines 25-45) or a frame tracking tool, which determines the number of frames, i.e. time for a hot-spot, see col. 11, lines 45-67.

The claimed 'means for broadcasting the digital signals', is met by the operation of the server 30 of Wistendahl, which broadcasts programs to subscribers, Fig. 3 & col. 6, lines 55-67.

The claimed 'receiver which receives the digital signal at the user locations, and plays at least one of audio, video or binary data on the playing device, and selectively features the hotspots', reads on the operation of the subscriber's set top box 32 of Wistendahl, col. 6, lines 55-67 & col. 7, lines 14-67.

Conclusion

- 3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
- A) Hoddie Teaches tracking location of hot-spots.
